DEDICATION

The Index to the 1880 Atlas of DeKalb County, Indiana, began simply as an aid to the search for information on the BOWMAN and JOHNSTON families of that county. Joseph BOWMAN, and his two wives, (1) Eve BORTZ and (2) Ida BRAND TONGUE, lived in Keyser Township. David JOHNSTON and his wife, Margaret KAMP, lived in Newville Township. Descendants of these families did and still do live in DeKalb County.

Later, the basic information was broadened to include pertinent data which might prove helpful to fellow searchers.

With this thought in mind, this book is humbly dedicated to all who search DeKalb County, be they amateurs or professionals.

PREFACE

Persons searching DeKalb County, Indiana, for information on their family trees, will soon learn that the court house burned in 1913. This tragedy resulted in many of the vital records being partially and/or totally destroyed.

The county began with the twelve prescribed townships, however, in 1876, Keyser Township was formed from the lower two tiers of Richland Township and the upper two tiers of Butler Township. Later, two more townships were formed from other townships, resulting in the present-day fifteen townships. On the following pages, there are three maps (not drawn to scale), showing the county as originally formed, the county with its first addition of Keyser Township, and, the present-day county with its fifteen townships.

The names of all landowners have been alphabetically indexed from each individual township map, and the names of the landowners in the villages were also indexed in the same manner. The third index covers an alphabetical listing of all landowners in the county, as they appear in the first and second indices. In the case of plural land ownership, a plus sign (+) has been added to the owner's name, when indexed by township. In the overall index, the plus sign (+) has been added to the name of the township and/or village, to show plural ownership.

As a further aid to the search for ancestors, a separate section has been devoted to the listing of the churches and cemeteries, as they appear on the maps. Rather than indicating the church or cemetery is "on the land of -", reference has been made to show the location to be "adjacent to the land of -".

The Business Directory at the back of the 1880 Atlas contains names not found in any of the indices. For that reason, this information has been included.

An alphabetical index has been made of the names of the landowners who are shown on the 1876 DeKalb County, Indiana Atlas, published by Baskins, Forster & Co. The 1880 Atlas of DeKalb County, Indiana, was published by the J. H. Beers Co., Chicago, Illinois. Other reference book is The History of DeKalb County, Indiana published by H. F. Bowen in 1914.

My sincere thanks and appreciation is extended to the staff of the Eckert Public Library, Auburn, Indiana for their generous assistance, and also, for their patience in answering my numerous questions.
